The goal of employee training is not only to raise awareness about the company's environmental commitments but also to increase work efficiency, which helps reduce energy and other inputs and contributes to an overall lower negative environmental impact.
- We commit to regularly analysing potential emergency risks and preparing proposals for effective prevention. This reflects the company's policy of focusing primarily on the prevention of emergency situations—not only in environmental areas such as water, air, and soil protection, but also in fire protection and occupational health and safety, which go hand in hand.
